The furnishing of prompt and effective telephone service is possible only when calls are made by number, following consultations of the directory.

In those cases, however, where the assistance of Information Operators is required, it is urged that complete and definite advice be given them as to spelling of names, initials and addresses.

The Information records in every Bell Telephone central office are entirely adequate to meet all warranted requirements made of them, and their effectiveness is guaranteed when the operators may consult them unhandicapped by indefiniteness or impatience on the part of persons calling.

Dark boney made from Oklahoma plants, is generally supertor to dark honey made in other states and it is difficult to obtain, better honey than the light colored Oklahoma honey, according to Prof. C. E. Sanborn of Oklahoma A. & M. College at Still-

Oklahoma honey is made from various plants such as sweet clover, white clover, alfalfa, sumae and cotton. The color of the blossom, according to Prof. Sanborn, has nothing to do with the color of the honey.

There is a big opportunity in the production of extract honey, say Prof. Sanborn, but comparatively few apier. iata in Oklahoma now produce honey in this form. Most of the Oklahoma honey is marketed is the comb, or as "chunk" honey. The comb and all is out loose from the frame, placed in ars, cans or buckets and sold by the pound

Prof. Sanborn says that the market for strained honey has declined and that there is no excuse for putting the product on sale in this form. The strained honey is made by pressing the comb honey much as one crushes apples in cider making and the honey is then strained through fine meah material. Particles of comb, rotten wood, dirt, and dead been are often found in the honey before strained. While straining eliminates these coarser materials, the product is not sani-
